ANCIENT MONUMENTS IN BURMA

MEIKTILA DIVISION

PART FIRST—STRUCTURAL EDIFICES.

Classification.

(See Government of India, Home Department, Resolution No. 3-168-83, dated the 26th November 1883, as subsequently amended by Government of India, Education Department, Resolution No. 48, dated the 21st February 1919.)

I. Those monuments which, from their present condition and historical or Archaeological value, ought to be maintained in permanent good repair.

II. Those monuments which it is now only possible or desirable to save from further decay by such minor measures as the eradication of vegetation, the exclusion of water from the walls, and the like.

III. Those monuments which, from their advanced stage of decay or comparative unimportance, it is impossible or unnecessary to preserve.

The Monuments in classes I and II should be further sub-divided thus :—

I (a) and II (a)—Monuments owned and maintained by Government.

I (b) and II (b)—Monuments owned and maintained by private Persons.*

I (c) and II (c)—Monuments owned by private persons* but maintained by the owners and Government jointly or by the Government exclusively.

* In Burma, pagodas, monasteries, sayats and cave temples are not the subjects of private ownership, and the expression "monuments owned by private persons" is not strictly accurate. For these reasons, a departure may be made from the prescribed term, and all such monuments shown in the list may be designated as "Monuments dedicated to the Buddhist Church" taking the word "Church" in its larger sense of the body of Buddhist believers.

1	Myingyan	Nyaung-u	Kyaukku- Ōnhmin Cave Temple.	This building is situated two miles to the east of Nyaung-u and is a structure of unique architecture. It contains one inscription, frescoes, and six stone figures representing scenes in Buddha's life. The first chapter of Dr. Forchhammer's Report on Pagan describes this temple. It says "Narapatisithu erected only the upper two storeys in the 12th and Narasihapati the lateral terraces in the 13th centuries, but the lower seems to have existed before Anaw-rata (11th century). I believe the Kyaukku temple to be like the Mahāmuni shrine in Arakan, a remnant of North Indian Buddhism, which existed in Burma before the introduction and establishment of the Southern Buddhist school from Ceylon and Pegu. The Kyaukku temple is often mentioned in Pagan history; it was the refuge of fugitive priests, kings and nobles long after the conquest of Pagan by the Chinese and Shans. But all mention of it ceases with the death of the renowned Monk Ariyadhamma, who inhabited the cave temple till the year 998 B.E. (1637 A.D.)." The temple is built against the precipitous side of a deep ravine. It was originally dedicated as the residence of the celebrated Pamsukula Mahāthera by King Narapatisithu in 1188 A.D.
2	Do.	Do.	Thamihwet- Ōnhmin and Hmyathat- Ōnhmin.	These structures are situated about half a mile to the south-east of Nyaung-u. They are subterranean passages, which were used as residences by Buddhist monks in the almost torrid climate of Pagan. They are the Burmese counterpart of the cave temples of India. The Thamihwet-Ōnhmin is a cave formed by digging into the side of a hill, and contains frescoes and an image of Buddha. The Hmyathat-Ōnhmin contains a stone inscription, and its principal feature is a zigzag corridor running throughout its length. These caves were constructed about the beginning of the 13th century A.D. They were in a fairly good condition up to the time of the British annexation of Upper Burma, as pilgrims used to resort to them for sight-seeing.

3	Myingyan	Nyaung-u	Sapada Pagoda	Built in the 12th century A.D. by Sapada, a native of Bassein, who was ordained a Buddhist monk in Ceylon and who founded a sect at Pagan on his return to Burma. The pagoda was constructed after the model of a Singhalese shrine, and is the prototype of similar structures in the province. It is a land mark in the history of Buddhism, and commemorates the religious intercourse between Burma and Ceylon.
4	Do.	Do.	Kyanzittha's Ōnhmin in Nattaung Monastery.	Its frescoes dating from the 12th century A.D. constitute the earliest mural paintings extant at Pagan.
5	Do.	Do.	Shittaung Pagoda near Nattaung Monastery.	Date of building unknown. It is a small stūpa , octagonal in plan, and is therefore of a rare type in Burma.
6	Do.	Do.	Thetkyamuni Pagoda.	Situated at Chaukpala, Nyaung-u, Pagan Township; appears to have been built in the twelfth century A.D.; is adorned with exquisite carvings in plaster, and with frescoes depicting scenes in the life of Asoka, the Convenor of the Third Buddhist Council.

7	Myingyan	Nyaung-u	Kōndawgyi Pagoda.	Situated close to No. 6; appears to have been built a century later and adorned with frescoes depicting scenes in the Jātaka stories.
8	Do.	Do.	Shwezigōn Pagoda.	Construction begun by Anawrata and completed by Kyanzittha in the 11th century. Its three terraces are decorated with terracotta tiles. It is the prototype of all cylindrical structures in Burma, and commemorates the triumph of the Southern School of Buddhism over the Northern.
9	Do.	Pagan	Ananda Pagoda	Built by Kyanzittha in 1090 A.D. It contains stone sculptures of exquisite workmanship, representing scenes in Gotama Buddha's life, and terracotta tiles representing scenes in the Jātakas or previous existences of the Buddha. It enshrines the images of the four Buddhas of the present world-cycle, and also a statue of Kyanzittha, its founder. Its plan, which is in the form of a Greek cross, and its architecture, which recalls the days of Hinduism and Jainism, are unique.
10	Do.	Do.	Gawdawpalin Pagoda.	The Gawdawpalin Pagoda was built by King Narapatisithu, who reigned from 1173 to 1210 A.D. in order to commemorate the ceremony of paying homage to the Manes of his ancestors. Its history is recorded on a stone inscription.
11	Do.	Do.	Thatbyinnyu Pagoda.	"Thatbyinnyu" signifies "Omniscience," and is one of the attributes of the Buddha. The pagoda was built by King Alaungsithu in 1144 A.D., after the model of the temples in Northern India. It has five storeys: the first and second were used as the residence of monks; images were kept on the third; the fourth was used as a library; and on the fifth was constructed a pagoda containing holy relics. The building is thus a combination of a stūpa and vihāra , and its history is recorded on its walls.

12	Myingyan	Pagan ...	Shwegugyi Pagoda.	Built by King Alaungsithu in 1141 A.D. after the model, it is said, of the "sleeping chamber" of the Buddha. Its history is recorded on its walls, and also in Pāli, on a stone. The lithic inscription is celebrated for the style and elegance of its composition.
13	Do.	Do. ...	Mahābodhi Pagoda.	This pagoda was built by Nandaungmya Min in 1215 A.D., after the model of the temple at Bodh Gaya in Bengal, and is the only specimen of its class in Burma.
14	Do.	Do. ...	Mingalazedi ...	Built by Tayōkpyemin in 1241 A.D. and is noted for its beautiful terracotta tiles. It indicates the high water-mark of Burmese religious architecture, because it was constructed a few decades before the subversion of the Pagan Empire by the Mongols.
15	Do.	Do. ...	Pebingyaung Pagoda.	Tradition ascribes this pagoda to the 10th century A.D. It is a shrine of unpretentious dimensions of Singhalese type with a large bell-shaped dome surmounted by a box-shaped structure generally known as dhātu-garbha or relic chamber, which, in its turn, is crowned by a sikhara . Its architectural evidence appears to show that it is older than the Sapada pagoda, which was built in the 13th century A.D., and which had hitherto been

16	Myingyan	Pagan ...	Bupaya Pagoda	considered to be the prototype of similar structures in the Province (vide No. 3). This monument enables us to push back the date of introduction of this type of building into Burma at least two centuries earlier. Erected by Pyusawdi, the third King of Pagan, who reigned from 168 to 243 A.D., on a spot where, according to tradition, grew a gigantic Bu or gourd creeper. Its luxuriant and persistent growth proved a serious obstacle to the extension of the cultivation of cereals in those days, and its complete eradication was ascribed to the efforts of Pyusawdi who subsequently became the son-in-law and heir of King Thamôkdayit, the founder of Pagan. To commemorate the event, the pagoda was built by Pyusawdi. It has been repaired and renovated by successive kings. It stands on the river bank at Pagan, and is a conspicuous object and landmark to navigators on the Irrawaddy.
17	Do.	Do. ..	Damayangyi Pagoda.	Built, in 1170 A.D., by King Narathu, who was also called the "Kalagyamin," or the "King killed by the Kalas." While the construction of the pagoda was in progress, the king was assassinated by some Kalas, who were probably natives of Chittagong, and it was never completed. Most of the arches and the major portion of the structure are still sound. It is the biggest building of the kind in Burma, and attached to it are two inscriptions dated respectively 1205 and 1253 A.D.

18	Myingyan	Pagan ...	Ngakywè Nadaung.	One of the five pagodas built by King Taungthugyi in the 10th century A.D., that is to say, before Pagan fell under the influence of the Southern School of Buddhism.
19	Do.	Do. ...	Shinbinthalyaung, or Recumbent Image of the Buddha within the precincts of the Shwesandaw Pagoda.	The date of this image is not known, but from its close resemblance, in its facial expression, to the colossal image of the Buddha on the platform of the Shwezigôn pagoda and in the Ananda Temple (vide Nos. 8 and 9), it may be assumed that it was built in the 11th century A.D. Unlike the recumbent image of the Buddha in the Manuha Temple at Myinpagan (vide No. 29), its head points to the south, whereas that of the Manuha Temple points to the north, a portion assumed by Gotama Buddha when he was lying on his death-bed between two Sal trees at Kusingara.
20	Do.	Do. ...	Patothamya ...	One of the five pagodas built by King Taungthugyi in the 10th century A.D. Its walls are adorned with frescoes.
21	Do.	Do. ..	Shwesandaw Pagoda.	First pagoda built by King Anawrata after his conquest of Thatôn in the 11th century. It is said that some sacred hairs of Gotama Buddha, which were obtained from the Talaing country, were enshrined in it. The pagoda is also known as the Mahāpeinnè or Ganesha Pagoda, from the fact that each of the four corners of its lowest terrace is guarded by three Hindu gods, Brahma, Vishnu and Siva, the third being often identified with Ganesha. In the Burmese times, the shrine enjoyed a yearly revenue of Rs. 5,000, derived from its endowments. In 1882, however, the rents were appropriated by the Burmese Government for the public

The villagers of Kyaunggyi Ngaywa, in the Pakôkku District, where its Wuttagan lands are situated, still make to the pagoda offerings of their first fruits. Built, in 1218 A.D., by King Nandaungmya to commemorate the spot where he was chosen to be Crown Prince out of five brothers. The rival claimants were ranged around a white umbrella, which, by means of a stratagem, was made to incline towards Nandaungmya, who was accordingly appointed to succeed his father, Narapatisithu. It is a double-storeyed temple surmounted by a Sikhara and is accessible to scholars and tourists as it is situated close to the Nyaung-u-Pagan road. In place of terracotta tiles, it is decorated with pieces of sandstone glazed in a green colour. The art of glazing earthenware is still extant, but that of glazing stone has been lost. The walls are ornamented with mural writings and frescoes, which have much weathered. There are four Buddhas facing the cardinal points on the ground floor as well as on the upper storey, which is reached by two staircases. On the latter the corridor is flanked by two rows of niches enshrining stone sculptures, which are ruder in finish than those in the Ananda. Most of the niches are, however, empty. On the walls of the south-eastern window are the horoscopes of certain personages, which were inscribed in order to secure them against damage or loss by fire, rebellion, war, etc. The history of the temple is recorded in an inscription.

23	Myingyan	Pagan ...	Upali thein ...	An Ordination Hall built in the 13th and repaired in the 17th century A.D., and is situated close to the Tilominlo Pagoda. It is a structure of fine proportions enclosed within brick walls. The roof is ornamented with a double row of battlements in simulation of wooden architecture, and its centre is surmounted by a small slim pagoda. The arches, on which the superstructure rest, are well built, and the fine and brilliant frescoes covering its walls and ceiling are in an excellent state of preservation.
24	Do.	Do. ...	Bidagat-Taik or library.	Built, in 1058 A.D. by Anawrata to house the thirty elephant loads of Buddhist scriptures in Pali, which he had brought away from Thatôn, and repaired in 1783 A.D. by King Bodawpaya of the Alaungpaya dynasty. It is lighted by perforated stone windows, and architecturally it is the only specimen of its class selected for conservation. Its chief peculiarity is its approximate simulation of architectural forms in wood in that it is covered by five multiple roofs surmounted by a dubika , like the Mandalay Palace spire, and ornamented with peacock-like finials in plaster carving.
25	Do.	Do. ...	Nat-hlaung-gyaung Temple.	Built, by King Taungthugyi, in 931 A.D., i.e., over a century before the introduction of the Southern School of Buddhism from Thatôn. It is the only Hindu Temple selected for conservation. As it is dedicated to Vishnu, it is decorated, on the outside, with stone figures of the "Ten Avatāras," Gotama Buddha being the ninth.

26	Myingyan	Pagan ...	Mi-malaung-gyaung Temple.	Built by King Narapatisithu in 1174 A.D., and its architectural form is quite unique. It consists of a small square temple with three multiple roofs ornamented with peacock-like finials at the corners, and is surmounted by a small spiral pagoda about 10 feet high. The whole structure rests on a high rectangular plinth, thereby securing it from any risk from fire or flood.
27	Do.	Do. ...	Remains of the Sarabha Gate of the old City wall of Pagan.	Built, in 849 A.D., by King Pyinbya, and repaired, in 1093 A.D. and 1698 A.D., by King Alaungsithu and the Governor of Pagan, respectively; is the only gate that remains in situ of the twelve gates that once adorned the old city, Pagan. It forms the main gate on the east face of the wall, and is guarded by two nats , male and female, the male figure being placed on the left and the female on the right as one enters the city by it.
28	Do.	Myinpagan	Nanpaya stone Temple.	This building, which is a small structure of exquisite proportions, is situated about two miles to the south of Pagan, and close to the Manuha Temple. According to tradition, it was used as the palace of the Talaing King Manuha, when he built the temple in 1059 A.D.
29	Do.	Do. ...	Manuha Temple	The Nanpaya contains specimens of fine sculptures in stone. The head of the Brahma is engraved on the pillars, which are adorned with floral designs. This temple is situated at Myinpagan, which is about two miles to the south of Pagan. It was built by Manuha, the last of the Talaing Kings, in 1059 A.D. It contains a recumbent image of gigantic proportions representing Buddha in the act of entering Nirvana .

30	Myingyan	Myinpagan	Nagayōn Pagoda.	This pagoda is situated at Myinpagan, about $2\frac{1}{2}$ miles to the south of Pagan. It was constructed by Kyanzittha, 1084-1112 A.D., Indian architects being employed. This building is the prototype of the Ananda Temple and shows the evolution of the latter.
31	Do.	Do.	Myinkaba Pagoda.	Built by King Anawrata in the 11th century in order to expiate the crime of killing his predecessor and half brother, Sōkkade, in battle. It is of bulbous form, and is situated on the Myinkaba chaung , which is so called because Sōkkade's corpse came floating down the stream together with his saddle. To the shrine are thus attached interesting historical associations, and its peculiar shape bespeaks its freedom from the influences of the Southern School of Buddhism, which was imported to Pagan after the conquest of Thatōn. It thus constitutes a dividing line between the Northern and Southern Schools of Buddhism at Pagan.
32	Do.	Do.	Seinnyet Nyima Pagoda.	A cylindrical structure of the 11th century, which is most interesting, both architecturally and historically. On the second terrace guarding the flower-vase at each corner is a figure of a lion, whose features are distinctly Chinese, while at each corner of the third terrace the wings of what looks like a winged dragon remain. On the bell-shaped dome, which is ornamented with ogres disgorging chaplets of pearls, the small figure of a Buddha of exquisite proportion sits enshrined in a highly ornamented niche facing each of the cardinal points. Above this is a foliated capital surmounted by a small stūpa , as in the case of Singhalese shrines. The pagoda represents a

Built, in the 11th century A.D., by King Kyanzittha. It is square in plan with a portico or mandapa projecting on the east face. A sikhāra , resting on three terraces, surmounts the square basement below, the walls of which are orna- mented with frescoes and plaster carvings, some of which are still in a very good state of preservation. The interior of the building, around which runs a vaulted corridor adorned with niches enshrining images of the Buddha in stone, is lighted by stone windows on which are incised geometrical designs of fine proportion.
34	Do.	Do.	Seinnyet Ama Temple.	Built, in the 11th century A.D., by the Seinnyet Queen in the form of a temple, surmount- ed by a sikhāra resting on three terraces. It constitutes a duad with the adjoining Seinnyet Nyima (No. 32).
35	Do.	Do.	Abèyadana Temple.	Kyanzittha, when he was serving under King Saw Lu, the son and immediate succes- sor of King Anawrata, incurred the royal displeasure and had to flee for his life. In the course of his flight, he fell asleep on a spot, the site of which is now marked by the Nagayôn pagoda (vide No. 30), the prototype of the Ananda pagoda, Pagan, and, according to tradition, a serpent shielded him with its hood. His wife, who had brought some food for him, saw this strange phenomenon from a distance, and not daring to approach the spot where Kyanzittha was lying

In order to commemorate this event, Kyanzittha had a temple built on this spot when he had become king in 1084 A.D. It is a square temple crowned by a sikhāva . Its walls are ornamented with frescoes. It contains also images of the Buddha in stone placed in niches disposed around the walls of the corridor. A small shrine of unique form of architecture, belonging to a period earlier than the 11th century A.D., and constituting an important landmark in the history of Buddhism at Pagan. Its singular architectural details bespeak the religious influences of Tibet and Southern India.
37	Do.	Thiipyit-saya.	Western Petleik Pagoda.	Date of building unknown; probably about the 11th century A.D.
38	Do.	Do.	Lawkananda Pagoda.	Built by Anawrata, the hero King of Burma, in 1059 A.D. The replica of a tooth relic obtained from Ceylon was enshrined in it. The pagoda is an ancient landmark, because near it were anchored all vessels from Ceylon, Arakan, and the Talaing country.
39	Do.	Do.	Eastern Petleik Pagoda.	Date of building unknown; probably about the 11th century A.D. This and the western Petleik Pagoda form two sister buildings. Its corridors are decorated with plaques illustrating scenes in the Buddhist birth stories.
40	Do.	Pwazaw ...	Damayazika Pagoda.	Built by King Narapatisithu in 1196 A.D. It is pentagonal at the base, and is decorated with beautiful terracotta tiles. It has mural writings and inscriptions.

75	Myingyan	Uyin-ywa	Shinbin Sagyo Pagoda.	Built, in 1192 A. D., by Narapatisithu, King of Pagan. An epigraph records its construction. It is decorated with fine glass mosaic.
76	Kyaukse	Kalagyaung	Nandawye Pagoda.	On the subversion of the Pagan Monarchy, in 1287 A.D., by the Chinese, three Shan brothers, Athinkaya, Yazathingyan, and Thihathu established themselves respectively at Myinzaing, Metkaya and Pinlè; Kyawzwa, the son and successor of Tayôkpyemin, the king who fled from the Chinese, still reigned at Pagan, apparently after having acknowledged Chinese suzerainty. In order to put an end to a division of supreme authority, and to throw off the Chinese yoke, Pwazaw, the intriguing Dowager Queen, advised the three brothers to inveigle the hapless Kyawzwa to Myinzaing and keep him in dur- ance vile. An invitation was accordingly sent to him that a pagoda and monastery had been built by the brothers on behalf of their overlord, who was besought to participate in the merit gained after a personal inspection of the buildings. Kyawzwa accepted the invitation and was seized by the three brothers at Nandawye Pagoda, and was forced to don a monkish garb and to retire to a monastery. This pagoda is thus a silent witness to the extinction of the dynasty of the Pagan Kings, which had lasted for nearly 1,300 years. Subsequently, Yazathingyan of Metkaya died a natural death, and Athinkaya of Myinzaing was poisoned by Thihathu of Pinlè and their bodies were buried under the western plinth of the pagoda. The shrine is adorned with green enamelled terracotta tiles like some of the pagodas at Pagan.

77	Kyaukse	Kalagyaung	Let-thè Pagoda	Saw Hnit, the titular King of Pagan, complained to the Chinese Emperor that his father, Kyawzwa, who was a tributary to China, had been deposed, and appealed to him for help. A Chinese army was sent down to Myinzaing in 1300 A.D. to restore the rightful king, but Kyawzwa's head was cut off and shown to the Chinese General, who was told that the negotiations could not be proceeded with as the party most interested was no more. As a test of the numerical strength of the Chinese and Shan armies, the Let-thè Paya was built by the Chinese, and the Chanthaya Paya by the Shans. The Chinese carried the bricks by hand (Let-thè), while the Shans set up a wickerwork structure, which was covered with white-washed cloth. (ဝါးဝါး ချင်းတူရား။)
78	Do.	Do.	Chanthaya Pagoda.	The Shans won in the competition, and they called the Pagoda Chanthaya (relief obtained). The Chinese General claimed a war indemnity as a condition of his withdrawal, but the Shan brothers were astute enough to ask him to repair an irrigation canal first, and then they paid him an indemnity which was euphemistically termed "Reward for labour supplied." The Chinese army then retired.

80	Kyaukse	Metkaya	Shweyaungdaw Pagoda.	This pagoda is situated close to No. 79 and was built in 1790 A.D. by a royal boatman of King Bagyidaw. Its walls and the soffits of its arches are adorned with frescoes which show that the Burmese officials of that period grew beards, and depict the costumes and manners of a by-gone age. A chapel within the enclosure contains five images of the Buddha which represent the five Buddhas of the present cycle.
81	Do.	Gatôn ...	Pwet-ka-ywe-daung Pagoda.	Enshrines a replica of the tooth-relic of Ceylon; one of the five pagodas, in which such a replica was deposited by Anawrata in the 11th century A.D., the other four shrines being Shwezigôn (Pagan), Tangyi-daung, Lawkananda, and Taywin-daung.
82	Do.	Ywagaing	Shwepwinlan Pagoda.	Built, in the 11th century A.D., by Anawrata, in order to commemorate the recovery of the men employed on the irrigation works, who had been stricken down by malaria.
83	Do.	Gwe ...	Shwepwinwun Pagoda.	Ascribed to Asoka; repaired by Anawrata (1044-1077 A.D.), Bagyidaw (1819-1837 A.D.); and Mindôn Min (1853-1878 A.D.); enshrines a golden statue of Anawrata's Minister of Works—hence the name Shweminwun.

86	Do.	Tayòksu	Palinbo Pagoda	Marks the site of Anawrata's residence immediately before he was gored to death by a wild buffalo at Myitche in the Pakòkku District (1077 A.D.). An evil omen was seen at this spot: a female frog was seen carrying on her back the body of her dead husband.
87	Do.	Kyaukse Town.	Shwethalyaung Pagoda.	Ascribed to Asoka; repaired subsequently by Anawrata (1044—1077.); enshrines a replica of the tooth-relic of Ceylon. Carrying the sacred relic, the Royal elephant, Sinma-Yintha, was sent off by the latter King to indicate the spot where it should be enshrined. On reaching the summit of the Shwethalyaung Hill, the elephant knelt down and indicated the site where the pagoda should be built.
88	Do.	Pyauk-seikpin.	Thandawmywet-taung Pagoda.	A legend says that, during the life time of Gautama Buddha, on this very hill, he predicted that the three Saings (a species of wild taurus) who made an offering to him would become three Kings. In 1300 A.D. they seized Kyawzwa, King of Pagan, and forced him to assume a monkish garb, and they became afterwards Kings of Myinzaing, Pinlè and Met-kaya.
89	Do.	Nyaung-shwe.	Shwe-Sat-Thwa' Pagoda.	Built by Anawrata in the 11th century A.D.; contains the figures of Queen Ma Paw and her brother, who were buried alive in Tamòksè Nan Paya, and who were subsequently deified.

AMENDED LIST

OF

MANDALAY DIVISION.

PART FIRST—STRUCTURAL EDIFICES.

Classification.

(See Government of India, Home Department, Resolution No. 3—168-83, dated the 26th November 1883, as subsequently amended by Government of India, Education Department, Resolution No. 48, dated the 21st February 1919.)

I. Those monuments, which, from their present condition and historical or archaeological value, ought to be maintained in permanent good repair.

II. Those monuments, which it is now only possible or desirable to save from further decay by such minor measures as the eradication of vegetation, the exclusion of water from the walls and the like.

III. Those monuments which, from their advanced stage of decay or comparative unimportance, it is impossible or unnecessary to preserve.

The monuments in classes I and II should be further subdivided thus ;—

I (a) and II (a)—monuments owned and maintained by Government.

I (b) and II (b)—monuments owned and maintained by private persons.*

I (c) and II (c)—monuments owned by private persons * but maintained by the owners and Government jointly or by the Government exclusively.

* In Burma, pagodas, monasteries, zayats and cave temples are not the subject of private ownership, and the expression "monuments owned by private persons" is not strictly accurate. For these reasons, a departure may be made from the prescribed term, and all such monuments shown in the list may be designated as "Monuments dedicated to the Buddhist Church" taking the word "Church" in its larger sense of the body of Buddhist believers.

1	Mandalay	Mandalay Cantonment.	The Palace and Pyatthats on the walls of Fort Dufferin.	The Mandalay Palace was removed from Amarapura in 1859. It was originally built by Shwebo-Min in 1845. It is a fine specimen of Burmese ceremonial architecture.
2	Do.	Do.	Tomb of King Mindôn.	King Mindôn died in 1878. He was the 10th of the Alaungpaya dynasty, which was founded in 1753. Before he died, he left instructions that his body should be buried and not cremated, thus violating the time-honoured custom of burning the dead bodies of the members of the Royal family. The mausoleum erected over his remains within the Palace enclosure is a good specimen of Burmese work in glass mosaic.
3	Do.	Do.	Tomb of Queen Sinbyumayin.	Sinbyumayin, the only daughter of the notorious Nanmadaw Mè Nu, Chief Queen of King Bagyidaw, was the second Queen of Mindôn and mother-in-law of Thibaw. She died at Rangoon in 1900, and her body was permitted to be buried near Mindôn's tomb.
4	Do.	Do.	Tomb of Mèdawgyi, mother-in-law of Mindôn.	Mèdawgyi, mother-in-law of Mindôn, was the mother of King Pagan. She died in 1874.
5	Do.	Do.	Tomb of Nanmadawgyi.	Nanmadawgyi, daughter of Mèdawgyi, referred to in No. 4, was the Chief Queen of Mindôn. She was a wise Princess and was learned especially in history and astrology, and was the constant adviser of her husband. She died in 1876 and was buried in the Palace stockade. Her tomb was the third erected within the sacred precincts of the Palace, the first being that of the Myauknandaw Queen, the favourite wife of King Mindôn, and the second being No. 4.

6	Mandalay	Mandalay Cantonment.	Tomb of Mèdawgyi (Laungshe Queen), Queen of Mindôn.	The Laungshe Mibaya was a Queen of Mindôn and mother of ex-King Thibaw. She was of Shan extraction, being a descendant of a daughter of the Sarabwa of Thibaw (Hsipaw). As Queen Dowager she enjoyed some power and a White House was built for her residence. She died in 1881, that is, three years after the accession of her son.
7	Do.	Do.	Remains of Atumashi Kyaung .	The Atumashi Kyaung or incomparable monastery was built by Mindôn Min, in 1857, at a cost of about five lakhs of rupees. The building was of wood covered with stucco on the outside, and its peculiar feature was its being surmounted by five graduated rectangular terraces instead of the customary pyatthats . In it was enshrined a huge image of Gautama Buddha having dimensions mentioned in the Buddhist scriptures. It was made of the silken clothes of the King covered with lacquer, and its forehead was adorned with a diamond weighing 32 raties , which was presented to King Bodawpaya, about a century ago, by Mahānawrata, Governor of Arakan. In the building were deposited, in large teak boxes, four sets of the Tripitaka , and the monastery was entrusted to the care of the late Pagan Sadaw. During the troubles following the British annexation of Upper Burma, the valuable diamond disappeared, and the whole building, together with its contents, was burnt in 1890. The carved compound gates, however, are in a good state of preservation, and are being conserved at the public expense.
8	Do.	Do.	Shwenandaw Kyaung .	Built by Thibaw, in 1880, mainly of materials obtained by dismantling the apartments occupied by Mindôn Min just before

The whole building is heavily gilt and adorned with kashi or glass mosaic work. Its architecture compares very favourably with that of the Queen's Monastery in A. Road.
9	Do.	Do.	Thudama Kyaung.	Built by Mindôn Min, in 1868, to be used as a refectory whenever ecclesiastical convocations were held in the Thudama Zayat. Some of the carvings are still in a fair state of preservation.
10	Do.	Do.	Thudama Zayat	This building is situated at the foot of the Mandalay Hill, Mandalay, and was built by King Mindôn in 1859, at the same time as the Palace. It was used for holding ecclesiastical convocations and the highest ecclesiastical tribunal. In 1902 the election of the Thathanabaing or Buddhist Archbishop was held near this building.
11	Do.	Do.	Patan Zayat	This building was used as an annexe of the Thudama Zayat, and Pali hymns were chanted in it by the monks, who attended an ecclesiastical convocation.
12	Do.	Do.	Salin Monastery	At page 7 of his monograph on the "Wood-carving of Burma" Mr. H. L. Tilly writes: "The Salin monastery was built in 1876 A.D., by the Salin Princess, and the carving with which it is adorned is probably the finest in Burma, and is a good example of work, which has not been contaminated by European influence.
13	Do.	Do.	Tawyagyaung Pagoda.	Built in 1859 A.D. by King Mindôn as an annexe of the Palace. In it was administered the oath of allegiance to all officials of the late régime and the inmates of the Royal Harem. It

13	Mandalay	Mandalay Cantonment.	Tawygyaung Pagoda— canold.	consists of a cylindrical pagoda surrounded by a number of chapels, of which the eastern is the most important, because in it was administered the oath of allegiance. The entrance of this chapel is decorated by excellent carvings, in plaster, of the Makara and other monsters of Buddhist Mythology.
14	Do.	A Road, Mandalay.	Myadaung Kyaung or Queen's Monastery.	This monastery was built in 1885, by Supayalat, Queen of King Thibaw. It is a very fine specimen of Burmese architecture, and for that reason, its conservation was ordered by Lord Curzon in December 1901.
15	Do.	Amarapura	Tomb of King Bodawpaya.	King Bodawpaya reigned from 1781 to 1819, i.e. for 38 years. His was the longest reign among the Kings of the Alaungpaya dynasty. He will be remembered in history as the Builder of the gigantic Mingun Pagoda, to which he dedicated a huge bell, which is the second largest in the world. His body was burnt on the site of the so-called "tomb," and the ashes were placed in a velvet bag and thrown into the river Irrawaddy.
16	Do.	Do.	Tomb of King Bagyidaw.	Bagyidaw was a grandson of Bodawpaya, being the son and heir of the Einshemin, who conquered Arakan in 1784 and brought away to Amarapura the celebrated Mahāmuni image, the palladium of the Arakanese race. Bagyidaw was under the influence of Nanmadaw Mè Nu, his notorious chief Queen and her brother Minthagyi Maung O, through whose intrigues and machinations the First Anglo-Burmese war broke out in 1824. He reigned from 1819 to 1837. His body was cremated on the site of his "tomb," and the ashes were thrown into the river Irrawaddy.

17	Mandalay	Amarapura	Tomb of King Shwebo Min.	Shwebo Min was the father of Kings Pagan and Mindôr, and reigned from 1837 to 1846. He rebelled against his brother, Bagyidaw, and deposed him. His body was cremated on the site of his "tomb" and the ashes were thrown into the river Irrawaddy.
18	Do.	Do.	The Sangyaung (two buildings).	Built in 1840, by the chief Queen of Shwebo Min and her daughter. The latter became the chief Queen of Mindôn Min. The Director-General of Archæ- ology remarks: "They are older than the monasteries at Mandalay, and the style of their wood-carving is bolder. Glass panels illustrating scenes in the Jâtaka stories, are let into the doors."
19	Do.	Do.	Remains of Bodawpaya's Palace.	Bodawpaya transferred his capital from Ava to Amarapura and built a new Palace in 1782. Its remains consist of two masonry buildings, namely, a Pangôn or watch tower and a Shwedaik or treasury.
20	Do.	Do.	Taungthaman Kyauktawgyi.	Built in 1847 A.D. by King Pagan on the model of the An- anda Pagoda at Pagan. It is the best preserved of the nume- rous religious buildings at the deserted capital of Amarapura, and exemplifies a type of archi- tecture, which though borrowed from the Indian designs at Pa- gan, was constructed entirely by Burmese architects. The artis- tic interest of the temple lies in the numerous frescoes with which its four porches are adorned. They represent reli- gious buildings, in various styles of architecture, built or repaired by Pagan Min at Sagaing, Amarapura, Ava, Pakangyi, Prome, and Rangoon, and the planets and the constellations, according to Burmese ideas of astronomy. The human figures depict the dresses and customs of the period.

21	Mandalay	Mandalay Cantonment.	Sandamani Pagoda.	This pagoda contains the graves of the Crown Prince the Sagu Mintha, the Malun Mintha and his brother, and the Maingpyin Mintha, who all lost their lives in the Myingun Rebellion of 1866. It also contains an iron image of the Buddha cast by Bodawpaya in 1802, and removed from Amarapura by Mindôn in 1874.
22	Do.	Do	Taiktaw Monastery.	In 1904 Mr. R. Grant-Brown, I.C.S., who was Superintendent of Gazetteer Revision, noted as follows on this monastery :— “ The Taiktaw is one of the finest monasteries in Mandalay. The carving on it and the Kyaungs surrounding it is bolder and belongs to an earlier, and to my mind, a better style than that of the Golden and Myadaung monasteries. I think something should be done to preserve this fine group of buildings. The Central Kyaung was the residence of the Thathanabaing and the posts were taken from the Amarapura Palace ” It was built by King Mindôn in 1859, and was used under the Burmese régime as the official residence of the Thathanabaing . Its interior is heavily gilt.
23	Do.	Do.	Man-aung Yadana Pagoda.	Built by King Thibaw, in 1881, after the model of the Kuthodaw Pagoda at the foot of the Mandalay Hill. The King is known in Burmese history as the “ Builder of the Man-aung Yadana Pagoda.” Both its historical and architectural interest lies in its being the shrine built by the last king of the Burmese race, and in its constituting the last link in the long series of religious edifices marking the sites of the capitals of Burma.

24	Mandalay	Amarapura	Tomb of King Mindôn's mother.	Erected in 1852. The old Queen died just before the accession of her son, who was the wisest ruler of the Alaungpaya dynasty.
25	Do.	Tagaung	Zina-Aunggya-Shwëbôntha Pagoda.	Situated to the north-east of the Court House. A pagoda of small dimensions, built in 1753, by Alaungpaya, on the site of his darbar , where he received the submission of the Sawbwa of Momeik. Before undertaking an expedition to Pegu in Southern Burma, Alaungpaya who had just been crowned, visited the upper reaches of the Irrawaddy, and secured the alliance and material support of the powerful Shan Chiefs.
26	Do.	Mandalay	Mahāmuni or Arakan Pagoda.	The Mahāmuni image was removed to Amarapura from Mrohaung in Arakan in 1784 as a spoil of war, after the conquest of that country by the Einshe-Min, son of Bodawpaya. At pages 44 and 45 of Phayre's History of Burma , the following description is given of the image:— "In the year A.D. 146 a king called Chanda Surya succeeded to the throne (of Arakan). In his reign a metal image of Buddha was cast, and so famous did it become, that miraculous powers were attributed to it for ages afterwards. This image was carried away by the Burmese when they conquered Arakan in A.D. 1784. It is now in a temple to the north of Amarapura, and is an object of fervent devotion. It is probable that in the reign of Chanda Surya, Buddhism was more distinctly established than heretofore, and images of Buddha may then have been introduced for the first time."

28	Do.	Do.	Eindawya Pagoda.	Built on the site of the residence of King Pagan (1846-52) which was occupied by him before he came to the throne; gilt from top to bottom; a shrine of fine proportions.
29	Do.	Do.	Shwekyimyin Pagoda.	Built in the 12th century, by Minyinzaw, a Prince from Pagan, who had come to the shores of the Aungbinlé lake to cultivate rice, and to make a heap of his produce as high as the Mandalay hill. In one of its chapels are kept, for safe custody, 40 images of Buddha found in the Palace at the time of the British occupation in 1885.
30	Do.	Mandalay Cantonment.	Kyauktawgyi Pagoda.	Contains an image of Buddha carved out of a single block of Sagyin marble under the orders of King Mindôn (1853-78). A multiple roof has been built over it by Sir Sao Mawng, K.C.I.E., K.S.M., Sawbwa of Yawnghwe.
31	Do.	Do.	Kuthodaw Pagoda.	Grouped around the main shrine are 729 stone slabs, on which is engraved the entire Tripitaka or the Buddhist Canon, in Pāli. A careful recension of the Buddhist Canon was made by the Fifth synod of learned monks, which was convened by King Mindôn (1853-78). The stone inscriptions are regarded by the Burmese Buddhists as containing the orthodox text of the Tripitaka .
32 } & 33 }	Do.	Amarapura	Shwegyet Yet and Shwegyet Kya Pagoda.	Situated near the railway terminus at the Amarapura shore. Said to have originally been built by King Asoka; subsequently repaired and enlarged by the Kings of Pagan, Ava, and Amarapura.

She had been espoused by Anawrata, King of Pagan, on his return from his expedition to China, had been taken to Pagan and then was exiled to her own country on being accused of witchcraft.
35	Do.	Singu ...	Shwemalè Pagoda.	Built by Alaungsithu, King of Pagan (1112—1167).
36	Ruby Mines.	Tagaung	Shwezigon " Pagoda.	According to tradition, this pagoda was built by Mingyi Mahā, King of Tagaung, in 445 B.C. 237,540 bricks were utilized in building it, each brick being contributed by a different household. The pagoda is situated within the walls of Upper Pagan. It has been renovated, and in 1902 a new ti was placed on it through the exertions of U Eindā, Gaingōk Sadaw. It enjoys an annual Government subsidy of Rs. 120.
37	Do.	Maingdaing	Mosudaung Pagoda.	This Pagoda is situated at Maingdaing, which is 27 miles to the east of Tagaung. It was built in 1758 A.D. by U San Ya, Pyizo or Governor of Maingdaing, which then consisted of 12 divisions containing about 42,000 houses. The pagoda marks the centre of an extensive agricultural tract of country, which was at one time the granary of the upper reaches of the Irrawaddy. Near it, are ruins of other Pagodas and Kyaungs of an older date. It enjoys an annual Government subsidy of Rs. 60.
38	Do.	Myadaung	Paungdaw-U Pagoda.	It is situated at Myadaung, which is 22 miles to the north of Tagaung. It was built in the 12th century A.D. by Alaung Sithu, King of Lower Pagan, who made frequent progress throughout his extensive empire. It was renovated by Min-

OF

TENASSERIM DIVISION

PART FIRST—STRUCTURAL EDIFICES.

Classification.

(See Government of India, Home Department, Resolution No. 3—168-83, dated the 26th November 1883, as subsequently amended by Government of India, Education Department, Resolution No. 48, dated the 21st February 1919.)

I. Those monuments which, from their present condition and historical or archaeological value, ought to be maintained in permanent good repair.

II. Those monuments which it is now only possible or desirable to save from further decay by such minor measures as the eradication of vegetation, the exclusion of water from the walls, and the like.

III. Those monuments which, from their advanced stage of decay or comparative unimportance, it is impossible or unnecessary to preserve.

The monuments in classes I and II should be further sub-divided thus:—

I (a) and II (a)—Monuments owned and maintained by Government.

I (b) and II (b)—Monuments owned and maintained by private persons.*

I (c) and II (c)—Monuments owned by private persons * but maintained by the owners and Government jointly or by the Government exclusively.

PART SECOND—HISTORICAL SITES.—Nil.

* In Burma, pagodas, monasteries, sayats and cave temples are not the subject of private ownership and the expression "monuments owned by private persons" is not strictly accurate. For these reasons, a departure may be made from the prescribed term, and all such monuments shown in the list may be designated as "Monuments dedicated to the Buddhist Church" taking the word "Church" in its larger sense of the body of Buddhist believers.

21	Amherst	Moulmein	Kyaik-than-lan Pagoda.	"Kyaik-than-lan" is said to be a corruption of "Kyaik-shan-lan" the shrine commemorating the defeat of the Shans or Siamese. It was built, in 875 A. D., by Rishi Thagnya or Thila, and was subsequently enlarged by Pôn-nu-rat, King of Moulmein, and again, in 1538 A. D. by Wareru, King of Martaban. When Tenasserim was ceded to the British after the first Anglo-Burmese war of 1824 A. D. this Pagoda was in ruins and was repaired by U Taw Le, an Extra Assistant Commissioner, with funds collected by public subscription. It measures 152 feet in height and 377 feet in circumference at the base.
22	Do.	Do.	Kyaikpanè Pagoda	Built, in the 8th century A.D., by Banè-seik-saw, King of Pegu, to commemorate a victory over the Shans or Siamese. In 1863 A.D., it was enlarged by Maung Shwe Pu, and is now 45 feet high.
23	Do.	Do.	Mutpun Pagoda	There are two pagodas; supposed to enshrine the relics of Gotama Buddha; repaired, about seventy years ago, by U Lin and U Tha Dun.
24	Do.	Munaing	Munaing Pagoda	Built, in the 6th century B.C., by two Ogres who, being converted by the Buddha, undertook to drop their tusks and to abstain from flesh.

26	Amherst	Kalaw ...	Ma Net Ku ...	A natural cave penetrating almost the whole range of the Kalaw hills. The entrance is very narrow, and it appears that about 1,000 years ago it was occupied by Ma Net, an Ob Tasaung , or Sprite who having a large treasure-trove for the purpose of building a monastery for Buddha Metteyya, used to make loans of money, which were never repaid.
27	Do.	Do.	Kalaw Pagoda	Built, in 100 B.C. by two Rishis over a hair of Gotama Buddha; repaired, about 500 years ago, by Ma Kun Taw, and again seven years ago, by the Kanmanè Pangyi . It is the most venerated shrine on the island.
28	Do.	Kyaik-Kami	Yelè-Paya ...	History or tradition unknown; the common belief is that, hundreds of years ago, this pagoda came floating from the sea and was stranded on the present ridge of rocks. It derives its sanctity from the fact that, owing to cross under-currents, the basement of the shrine is never touched by sea-water even at high flood.
29	Do.	Wagaru ...	Kyaik Nat Pagoda.	History unknown; said to have been erected about the time of Kadu Min. The hillock, on which the pagoda is built, is supposed to be the nest of a fabulous bird. All the land around this hill is said to have been under water.
30	Do.	Lamaing	Kelatha Pagoda	Built, in the 6th century B.C. by Rishi Muni Bala, over eight hairs of Gotama Buddha which were obtained at the same time as those given to Taphussa and Bhallika, the latter being enshrined in the Shwedagon Pagoda at Rangoon.

The factory was erected in 1753 by David Hunter who was deputed by the Hon'ble the East India Company to form a settlement on the Island of Negrais. He died in the settlement some months after his arrival and was succeeded in charge of the settlement by Henry Brooke, by Captain John Howes, who also died in the settlement, and by Lieut. Thomas New- ton. In 1757 Ensign Lister who was deputed by Newton obtained from King Alaung- paya a treaty ceding Negrais Island to the British in perpe- tuity. On the 6th October 1759, Captain W. H. South- by, together with Messrs. Briggs and Nulkey Hope and two others whose names are unknown, were suddenly at- tacked and treacherously mur- dered while assembled for dinner in the upper storey of the fort house. The surviving members of the garrison, 5 in all, were carried away as pri- soners to Rangoon. The settlement was thereafter abandoned.

6	Henzada	Zalun ...	Pyidawbyan Image.	Cast, in 1838 A.D., by U Shwe Bwin, Myothugyi of Zalun, and its original name was "Manaung-Myin Paya" (the Conqueror of Māra). When the Second Anglo-Burmese War broke out in 1852 A.D., it was taken elsewhere, and was restored to its Temple, after some interval; hence it is called "Pyidawbyan" (restored to the home land).
7	Do.	Nyaungbintha	Kyaikthatha-baung Pagoda.	Built, in 984 A.D., by Samuddaghosa, King of Bassein, and his Queen, Ummādandī, over 54 corporeal relics obtained from Ceylon. The work of construction was supervised by Byinnyagyandaw.
8	Do.	Okpo ...	Shwesandaw Pagoda.	Built, in the 10th century A.D., by Ummādandī, Queen of Samuddaghosa.
9	Do.	Henzada Town.	Nga-Myetnha Pagoda.	Built, in 1815 A.D., by U Bu, Myothugyi of Myanaung, who had received the title of Kyawdin Nawrata from the Burmese King, Bodawpaya, who had married his daughter, the Thetpan Mibaya; owing to the erosion of the river Irrawaddy, the shrine was removed and rebuilt on another site in 1887 A.D.
10	Do.	Do.	U Pāyè Pagoda	Built, in 1804 A.D., by Myōthugyi U Pāyè.
11	Do	Do.	Shwe-pyaung-byaung Pagoda.	Built, in 1817 A.D., by U Palu, Uyin-ōk (Superintendent of Royal Gardens); in 1846 A.D., repaired and gilt by U Myat Tha Nan, Myothugyi . Its gilding was so brilliant that it came to be called by its present name.

13	Do.	Danbi-Kun-gyangôn.	Shweyaung-bya Pagoda.	Built in the 10th century A.D. by Ummādandī, in the course of her flight from Pegu, where the Talaing King, Dwe Yazadart desired to espouse her.
14	Do.	Kônbyin ...	Thida Paya or Kyaikpin Padaw Pagoda.	Built, in the 10th century A.D. by Samuddaghosa and his Queen, Ummādandī, during their flight from Bassein.
15	Ma-ubin	Min-tazu	Mingayu Pagoda	Built about 100 years ago; originally called "Min-thayu" (mad Prince), because on the site of the Pagoda a Prince recovered his sanity.
16	Do.	Pantanaw	Shwemyindin Pagoda.	Built, in the 10th century A.D., by Kesana, a Prince of Ceylon, who had travelled to Bassein to aspire for the hand of Princess Ummādandī, whose fame for beauty had reached even that distant island. At the spot, where he received the unwelcome news of his having been forestalled by another (Nagāi Mintha), he built the Pagoda to commemorate the sad event. It was subsequently enlarged on his accession to the throne of Ceylon.
17	Do.	Kattiya ...	Pagayit Pagoda	Built, in the 3rd century B.C., by Tissa and his brother, Cunda, emissaries of Asoka, over 21 corporeal relics of the Buddha, under the name of "Thetkyamuni Shwe-yit-tan." In the 11th century A.D., Kyanzittha of Pagan arrived at the Pagoda and made two golden frogs weighing 75 ticals of gold. Facing the pagoda, he prayed that if they croaked thrice, then it would be a sign that he would become King. The frogs croaked accordingly; hence the name "Pagayit." The architecture of the shrine is primitive.

PEGU DIVISION.

PART FIRST—STRUCTURAL EDIFICES.

Classification.

(See Government of India, Home Department, Resolution No. 3—168-83, dated the 26th November 1883, as subsequently amended by Government of India, Education Department, Resolution No. 48, dated the 21st February 1919.)

I. Those monuments which, from their present condition and historical or archaeological value, ought to be maintained in permanent good repair.

II. Those monuments which it is now only possible or desirable to save from further decay by such minor measures as the eradication of vegetation, the exclusion of water from the walls, and the like.

III. Those monuments which, from their advanced stage of decay or comparative unimportance, it is impossible or unnecessary to preserve.

The monuments in classes I and II should be further sub-divided thus:—

I (a) and II (a)—Monuments owned and maintained by Government.

I (b) and II (b)—Monuments owned and maintained by private persons.*

I (c) and II (c)—Monuments owned by private persons* but maintained by the owners and Government jointly or by the Government exclusively.

* In Burma, pagodas, monasteries, sayats and cave temples are not the subject of private ownership, and the expression "monuments owned by private persons" is not strictly accurate. For these reasons, a departure may be made from the prescribed term, and all such monuments shown in the list may be designated as "Monuments dedicated to the Buddhist Church," taking the word "Church" in its larger sense of the body of Buddhist believers.

1	Pegu ...	Zaing-ga-naing.	Shwethalyaung Image.	Constructed, in 994 A.D., by King Migādhippa, the younger, upon the death of King Anurājā. The largest recumbent image of the Buddha in Burma, being 180 feet long. In 1906, Messrs. Burn & Co. of Calcutta erected an iron shelter over it at a cost of Rs. 1,50,000.
2	Do. ...	Do.	Mahazedi Pagoda.	Built, in 1559 A.D., by Hanthawadi Sinbyuyn, who was also known as Bayin Naung to the Burmese, and as Branginoco to the Portuguese, on the model of the Mahācheti stūpa of Ceylon. The upper portion of the shrine was probably destroyed by an earthquake several years ago.
3	Do. ...	Do.	Kalyani Thein	Built, in 1476 A.D., by Dhammacheti, King of Pegu, whose object was to validate the Apostolic succession of the Buddhist hierarchy of Burma. In its vicinity are ten stone inscriptions in Pāli and Talaiing setting forth the history of the monument as well as an account of the vicissitudes of the Buddhist Church in Burma and of the efforts made by Dhammacheti to reform and purify it.
4	Do. ...	Payathônzu village.	Kyaikpun Images.	Built, in 1476 A.D., by Dhammacheti, King of Pegu. The monument consists of four sitting images of the Buddha placed back to back and facing the four cardinal points and recalls the images of the fourfaced Brahma of India. Each image measures 67½ feet in height.

5	Pegu ...	Payathônzu village.	Shwegugyi Pagoda.	Built, in 1176 A.D., by Dhammacheti, King of Pegu. In its vicinity there are Talaing epigraphs, more or less obliterated, and terracotta tiles, the majority of which have been removed elsewhere.
6	Do. ...	Kyauk-taingan.	Shwegugale Pagoda.	Built, in 1494 A.D., by Hatthirāja or Byinnya Ran, King of Pegu. The basement of the shrine consists of ambulatory corridors containing 64 images of the Buddha, and its superstructure is a cylindrical pagoda.
7	Do. ...	Palè ...	Kyaikmakaw Pagoda.	According to an extant legend, out of the six hairs of Gotama Buddha obtained by six Rahandas , five were given to traders, and the remaining one was taken and enshrined by Pindika, a merchant of Thatôn, in this pagoda. This shrine stands in the jungle about a mile from Palè. An inscription in Talaing was recently found near it on a large stone.
8	Do. ...	Pegu Town	Shwe-hmawdaw Pagoda.	Known to the Talaings as Kyat-Muthaw; according to tradition was built by King Samanta-rāja, Pindika, a merchant, and the brothers, Mahāsāla and Chulasāla, who were traders, over two hairs obtained by them from Gotama Buddha, while he was residing at Rājagriha. One of the principal pagodas of Burma; is said to be 198 cubits high and 910 cubits in circumference; has 385 small subsidiary shrines.

9	Pegu ...	Zaing-ga-naing.	Nagalein Pagoda.	Built, in 917 A.D., by Migādhippa the Great, on his succession to the throne of Hanthawadi, over the relics of the Buddha and his disciples. The plinth represents Mount Meru and is composed of five tiers, each guarded by Nāgas, Garudas, Kumbhandas and Gandhabbas respectively.
10	Do. ...	Do.	Pāli stone-shed containing the Kalyani inscriptions.	The Kalyani inscription is situated at Zaing-ga-naing, the western suburb of the town of Pegu. When whole, the average dimensions of the ten stones were about 7 feet high, 4 feet 2 inches wide and 1 foot 3 inches thick. There are 70 lines of text to each face, and three letters to an inch. The language of the first three stones is Pāli, and that of the remaining seven is Talaing, being a translation of the Pāli text. This inscription was erected by Dhammacheti or Rāmādhpati, King of Pegu, in 1476 A.D., in commemoration of the consecration, by Talaing Monks, who had returned from Ceylon, of a thein or hall for the proper ordination of Buddhist monks in Burma.
11	Do. ...	Compound of District Court.	Pillars of victory	A little to the north-east of the Shwehmawdaw Pagoda is a small hill, fabled to have been the resting place of two hamsa birds (Brahmani duck), when the region about Pegu was under the sea. At the foot of this hill are two octagonal pillars of fine granite. The length of one is about 11 feet, and that of the other about 5. They bear no inscriptions, but a tradition is current that they were erected by Kala or Indians, who subsequently claimed the country as their own by virtue of pre-occupation, and that they were driven out by a Talaing

				Prince. The local tradition is confirmed, in a way, by the history of the Chola dynasty of Southern India. It is related that, in the 11th century A.D., or more correctly between 1025 and 1027 A.D., a prince of that line, Rajendra Chola I by name, crossed the sea and overran Kidāram (or Katāha in Sanskrit), which may be identified with the ancient Talaing kingdom of Rāmaññadesa, now called Pegu. In order to commemorate his conquest of a foreign country, he erected these pillars of victory in accordance with a well-known Indian custom.
12	Hantha-waddy.	Payagôn ...	Kyaikkauk Pagoda.	According to tradition, enshrines one of the two hairs of Gotama Buddha, which were given by the sage to 24 Rishis, on his visit to Syriam, at the invitation of Gavampati, the second being enshrined in the Kyaikkasan Pagoda. Enlarged by Bhogasena, King of Pada, in 439 B.C.
13	Do.	Nanyaw ...	Nanyaw Pagoda	Built, in the 18th century A.D., by the Talaing nobles who had fled to Syriam, on the invasion of Pegu by Alaungpaya.
14	Do.	Payagyi ...	Da-nyein Pagoda.	Erected by the same Talaing nobles on the declaration of peace between the Burmans and the Talaings.
15	Do.	Syriam Town	Old Portuguese Church.	The Church was erected in 1749-50 A.D., by Monseigneur Nerini, the second Vicar Apostolic of Ava and Pegu, and a member of the Barnabite Mission, which laboured in Pegu in the 18th century. The major part of the expenses of the erection was borne by Nicolas de Aguilar, a wealthy Armenian Merchant. The form of the building is thus described by Monseigneur G. M. Percoto, Missionary to the Kingdom of Ava and Pegu and Bishop of Massulis:

				"In plan it consisted of a single nave, ornamented with arches and columns both inside and out. Its dimensions were as follows: Length 81, breadth 38, and height 40 French feet. It was intended to have had a domed roof, but the arrival of the Coromandel workmen who were sent for to construct it, was prevented by the war, which arose, and the roof was therefore completed in another style. The whole building was a marvel to Peguans, but what they more especially admired was a spiral staircase going up inside the tower."
16	Hantha-waddy.	Paya kwin (Twante).	Kyaikpyaungbyè Pagoda.	Enshrines two hairs of Gotama Buddha, presented by Mahathera Sumana to Naga-Kumara, King of Ukkalāba. In the construction of the pagoda, the King was assisted by Rishi Isi-byaung.
17	Do.	Payagyi-gyaung.	Danòk Pagoda	It is said that the word "Danòk" is a corruption of "Sanhnòk," which means "to take out the hair relics." In the 6th century B.C., when Taphussa and Bhallika were bringing eight hairs of Gotama Buddha, a scorpion stole two of them and presented them to Sammavati, King of Ukkalāba, who enshrined them in this pagoda.
18	Do.	Twantè ...	Shwesandaw Pagoda.	Said to enshrine two hairs of Gotama Buddha.
19	Insein ...	Kyaik-kasan	Kyaik-kasan Pagoda.	Built, in the 4th century B.C., by Sihadipa, King of Thatôn, assisted by Yasa and seven other monks, over 16 hairs and 38 bone-relics of Gotama Buddha. In Talaing called Kyaik-Ha-san, signifying the "Pagoda of eight monks." 21	Do.	Thamaing	Kyauk-waing Pagoda.	In Talaing, called "Kyaik-waing-ut. Kyaik means a pagoda, waing "to play," and ut "hide and seek." According to tradition, Buddha Kakusandha played "hide and seek" with an ogre, the wager laid being that if the ogre was found by the Buddha, he should listen to his preaching, and if not found the Buddha should be eaten by the ogre.
22	Do.	Sangyi-wa	Kyaik-kalo Pagoda.	In Talaing, called "Kyaik-kalaw"; kyaiik means a pagoda, and kalaw "to do obeisance, to revere." According to tradition, the ogre did obeisance to Buddha Kakusandha on this spot (vide column 5, item 21).
23	Do.	Do.	Kyaikkalè Pagoda.	In Talaing, called "Kyaik-talè"; kyaiik means a pagoda; and talè "to disappear." According to tradition the Buddha Kakusandha disappeared, on this spot, between the eyebrows of the ogre while playing "hide and seek" (vide column 5, item 21). Appears to have been repaired by Sinbyuyin Byinnya Nwè or Razadayit, King of Pegu (1385—1423 A. D.); repaired, in 1897, by local elders headed by the Thugyi of Sangyiwa and U Taik, who found the shrine in a ruined condition on the top of a hill; work of repair continued in the following year by a special association formed by Maung Po Thaw, Judicial

Sādhu!" Good! Good! On the site of the Ogre's conversion this shrine was built.
25	Do.	Yin-gwè-zayat.	Kaik-de-da-lun Pagoda.	The Talaing name "Kyaik-de-da-lun" means, in Burmese, "the Pagoda of the sandalwood hill." In 1471 A.D., Dhammacheti, King of Pegu, commanded Zeikbrè, the Talaing Governor of Hmawbi, to enshrine in this pagoda three images of the Buddha, which had been brought back from Ceylon by his Mission of Buddhist Monks, who were deputed to validate the apostolic succession in Burma. In 1526 A.D. it was repaired by Thushin-ta-gā-rut-pi, who was then residing at Hmawbi.
26	Do.	Yin-gwè-zayat.	Padawmu Pagoda.	In Talaing, it is called "Kyaik-sôk-san," or "The Tomb Pagoda." The shrine was erected over the tomb of a Rishi. It was repaired by the Governor of Hmawbi mentioned in item 25, and also by Thushin-ta-ga-rut-pi, the King of Pegu, who was conquered and deposed by Tabin-shwe-ti, King of Toun-goo, in 1540 A.D.

27	Prome ...	Shwe- launggan.	Bawbawgyi Pagoda.	The Bawbawgyi, with the Payagyi and Payama, forms a triad of ancient pagodas of unusual type in the neighbourhood of Hmawza. Tradition assigns them to the 5th century B.C., but judging by their architecture, their construction could not have been earlier than the 5th or 6th century A.D., when Chinese, Cambodian, Talaing, and South-Indian influences were blended at Prome. The Bawbawgyi is a solid, cylindrical brick structure, whose height is about 200 feet. It rests on five terraces, and is cylindrical in shape with a slight indentation in the middle. No inscriptions giving a history of the pagoda have yet been discovered in its vicinity, but its age may be inferred from an inscription found among the débris on the platform of the pagoda. This inscription contains a Buddhist text written in a South-Indian character, which on palaeographic grounds may be assigned to the 5th or 6th century A.D.;

28	Prome	Hmawza	Stone sculptures near the Set- taing or Kyaukka Thein .	As one enters the compound of the Kyaukka Thein by the east gate, he is confronted by a row of three sculptured stones on his right and left. Each stone is about 10 feet high, 4 feet wide, and 6 inches thick, and on it is sculptured the Buddha under the Bo tree, attended by two disciples resting against a support with serrated edges, and having a robe laid on the left shoulder. Though their hands are clasped together, as in prayer, the disciples are not in a kneeling attitude. The position assumed by them is like that of the Brahma in the Nanpaya Temple at Pagan. They sit down on the floor, the outer knee being higher than the inner. In January 1907, in the course of the excavations made by the late General de Beylié, the middle of the right row of stones was discovered to be covered by characters in an ancient script, which is probably ancient Pyu, and which may be assigned to the 7th-8th century A.D.
29	Do.	Do.	Bèbè Pagoda	A square temple in brick, surmounted by a sikhāra and having a single entrance facing the east. It has arches of probably Orissan origin, and is decorated with plaster carvings in which the flamboyant finial and the mythical mākāra or crocodile predominate. The chamber or interior of the building is covered with a vaulted roof, and in the wall confronting the entrance is embedded a sculptured stone representing the Buddha in a sitting attitude, with the left foot not upon but below the right. He is flanked by two disciples in an attitude of prayer wearing robes like those of Tibetan or Chinese

At the foot of the stone is an inscription, which is probably in the Pyu script, a few of whose characters are still legible. They resemble those of the Pyu face of the Myazedi inscription at Pagan, which was set up in 1084 A.D. Judging by the inscription and its architecture, the building may be assigned to the 10th century A.D. A low brick temple, which may be assigned to the 9th century A.D., i.e. to say, before the introduction of the southern school of Buddhism from Thatôn. It may be described as a building consisting of a vaulted corridor running around a central pillar as in the case of the Nagayôn and other temples at Pagan. Against the central pillar are embedded four sculptured stones facing the cardinal points. The figures on the eastern and northern faces have been destroyed; but of those on the remaining sides one is still in a fair state of preservation and the other has broken away near the top. On the southern face, i.e., on the broken stone the Buddha is flanked probably by two Bodhisattvas; on the western, the Buddha appears between two small stūpas or chortens. The peculiarity about these two effigies of the Buddha is that the right hand, instead of resting on the lap, or pointing towards the earth, is outstretched.

He appears in his military uniform with a tiara on his head, and with a dagger in each hand. The figure of the younger sister engraved on a stone has weathered badly and has been defaced. The youngest is not represented at all. The stone sculptures may be assigned to the 16th century A.D. The villagers of Kanbauk say that Maung Waing and his two sisters were of royal lineage; beyond that they do not remember anything. The celebration of an annual festival in July, however, shows that the Nats are still held in high honour. Here we have an instance of the deification of heroes and of hero-worship, which is of the post-Buddhist type, and which is carried on as a rival and parallel cult to Buddhism.

Said to be built, in 326 B.C. by Sihadipa, King of Thatôn, over sixteen hairs and thirty-two bone-relics of Gotama Buddha; which were brought over to Burma by eight Arhats headed by Yasa, who were the disciples of Māhathera Moggaliputtatissa, the President of the Third Buddhist Council, held under the patronage of Asoka. In 1763 A.D. it was repaired by Min-letwè, Generalissimo of the Burmese Army, who had accompanied Sin-byuyin to Rangoon, where the latter placed a new ti on the Shwedagon Pagoda as a symbol of having attained supremacy over the Talaings. It was henceforth known as "Min-letwè Paya." After the British occupation of Rangoon, in 1852-53, it was used as a signal station, and came to be known by its present names in English and Burmese.
53	Do.	Botataung	Botataung Pagoda.	Built, in 326 B.C. by Sihadipa King of Thatôn, in conjunction with the Arhat Mission from India (vide column 5, item 52). AMENDED LIST OF ANCIENT MONUMENTS IN BURMA SAGAING DIVISION

PART FIRST—STRUCTURAL EDIFICES.

Classification.

(See Government of India, Home Department, Resolution No. 3-168-83, dated the 26th November 1883, as subsequently amended by Government of India, Education Department, Resolution No. 48, dated the 21st February 1919.)

I. Those monuments which, from their present condition and historical or Archaeological value, ought to be maintained in permanent good repair.

II. Those monuments which it is now only possible or desirable to save from further decay by such minor measures as the eradication of vegetation, the exclusion of water from the walls, and the like.

III. Those monuments which, from their advanced stage of decay or comparative unimportance, it is impossible or unnecessary to preserve.

The Monuments in classes I and II should be further sub-divided thus :—

I (a) and II (a)—Monuments owned and maintained by Government.

I (b) and II (b)—Monuments owned and maintained by private persons.*

I (c) and II (c)—Monuments owned by private persons* but maintained by the owners and Government jointly or by the Government exclusively.

* In Burma, pagodas, monasteries, sayats and cave temples are not the subjects of private ownership, and the expression "monuments owned by private persons" is not strictly accurate. For these reasons, a departure may be made from the prescribed term, and all such monuments shown in the list may be designated as "Monuments dedicated to the Buddhist Church" taking the word "Church" in its larger sense of the body of Buddhist believers.

1	Sagaing	Sagaing ...	Ywataung In- scription shed.	The shed covering the inscription was constructed in 1900, by the Executive Engineer, Shwebo, at the request of the Superintendent, Archaeological Survey, and is situated near the European Cemetery at Ywataung. The lettering of the inscription, which dates from the 14th century A.D., has been somewhat obliterated.
2	Do.	Do.	Tupayôn Pagoda	Built by Narapati, King of Ava, in the 15th century. The Director-General of Archaeology describes it as a " pagoda of very rare type in Burma and of peculiar architectural interest as marking a certain phase in the development of these structures." There are two valuable inscriptions near the pagoda.
3	Do.	Ava ...	Nanmyin or Watch Tower.	The site of the deserted Palace of Ava is now marked by a solitary masonry Watch Tower, which is about 90 feet high. It is all that remains of the stately and gorgeous palace reared by Bagyidaw, the King, who had the temerity to declare war against the British in 1824 A.D. Ava was almost destroyed by an earthquake in 1838 A.D., and was abandoned three years later by Shwebo Min in favour of Amarapura.
4	Do.	Do.	Ôkkyauṅ mon- astery (Mahā Aungmye Bônzan).	Its official designation is Mahā-Aungmye Bônzan. It was built in 1818 A.D., by Nanmadaw Mè Nu, the notorious Chief Queen of Bagyidaw, for the residence of her religious preceptor, the Nyaunggan Sadaw. The earthquake of 1838 A.D., damaged it, and in 1873 A.D., it was restored by Sinbyumashin, Queen of Mindôn, and daughter of

The building is the only masonry monastery selected for conservation, and it is a fine specimen of its class. Cast, in 1808 A.D., by King Bodawpaya to be dedicated to the Mingun Pagoda, which was never completed, and is now in ruins. Its weight is about 90 tons, and it is the second largest bell in the world, being one-third of that at Moscow and fourteen times of that of St. Paul's. Its supports were destroyed by the earthquake of 1838, and it rested on the ground till 1896, when it was raised, slung on an iron beam, and placed in a suitable shed, under the supervision of the Deputy Commissioner, Sagaing. 				Meru, the centre of the universe. It is surrounded by seven concentric ranges of mountains, and safeguarded by five kinds of mythical monsters called the Naga, Garuda, Kumbhandha, Yakha, and Gandhabba, to each of which a separate region is assigned. King Bagyidaw, while he was yet a Prince, built this Pagoda in 1816, in the form of the Sulamani. Pagoda resting on Mount Meru, in order to commemorate the death of his senior wife, the Sinbyumè Minthami, who was succeeded by the notorious Nanmadaw Mè Nu. Yule visited it in 1855, and describes it in the following terms in his "Mission to Ava" (page 172). "The basement which formed the bulk of the structure consisted of seven concentric circular terraces, each with a parapet of a curious serpentine form. These parapets rose one above and within the other, like the walls of Ecbatana as described by Herodotus. The only ascent appeared to be from the east. In the parapet of every terrace were at intervals niches looking outwards, in which were figures of nats and warders in white marble, of half life size. A great circular wall inclosed the whole at some distance from the base. It was difficult to ascertain the nature of the central structure, so shattered was it by the earthquake. The whole (though round instead of square in plan) had a great general resemblance to the large ancient pyramidal temple in Java called Boro Buddor, as described by Raffles and Crawford, but this.

				Mengoon structure was not, I think, very old, and I doubt if the resemblance was more than accidental." The building was severely shattered by the earthquake of 1838, and Yule saw it in a ruinous condition. It was, however, restored by King Mindôn near the close of his reign (1874). In 1876, Colonel E.B. Sladen read a paper on it before the Royal Asiatic Society, which is printed at page 406, Volume IV of the Society's Journal, together with remarks by Colonel Yule and others. Fergusson has also noticed it at page 624 of his "History of Indian and Eastern Architecture," and Scott mentions it at page 73 of Part II, Volume III, of his Upper Burma Gazetteer.
7	Sagaing	Mingun ...	Pôndawpaya or model of the Mingun Paya.	Bodawpaya, who reigned from 1811 to 1819 A.D., spent more than twenty years in building the Mingun Pagoda, the largest Buddhist structure in Burma, which was never completed. In spite of the earthquake which shattered it in 1838, its height is still about 165 feet. Its probable dimensions, if completed, could, however, be inferred from the Pôndawpaya, a structure about 15 feet high, which served as the model. An illustration and description of the latter are given at pages 169 and 170 of Yule's "Mission to Ava."

9	Sagaing	Paganyat	Kaunghmudaw Pagoda.	Built, in 1636 A.D. by Thalun Mindaya, King of Ava, on the model of the Mahūcheti of Ceylon; is stūpa shaped and is the only one of its type in Burma.
10	Do.	Bawga ...	Ngadatkyi Pagoda.	Built, in 1657 A.D., by Min-yēnandameik, son and successor of Thalun Mindaya, King of Ava. It is the largest sitting image of Buddha in Upper Burma.
11	Do.	Sagaing Town.	Aungmyelawka Pagoda.	Built, in 1783 A.D., by Bodawpaya, on the site of a house occupied by him before he came to the throne. The pagoda is also known as the Eindawya Paya. It is constructed entirely of sandstone, is cylindrical in form, and has a tapering spire. Its architecture is modelled after the Shwezigōn Pagoda at Pagan.
12	Do.	Sagaing Town.	Shwemōktaw Pagoda.	According to tradition, in 309 B.C. King Asoka built pagodas all over his Empire, and their construction was begun at the time of a lunar eclipse; hence they are all called "Mōktaw" or "freed from the black shadow." Repaired by successive Kings, who apparently encased the original structure in successive layers. It was repaired last in 1904, by the late Hlethin Atwin Wun, a Minister of the late Burmese Government.

13	Sagaing	Ywataung	Ônmhinhônzè	Erected, in 1643 A.D., by a monk called Padugyi Thingayaza (or Buddhist Archbishop) to represent the twenty-eight Buddhas beginning with Dipankara and ending with Gotama. The monument now consists of forty-five images of Buddha enshrined in a crescent-shaped colonnade on the side of the Sagaing hills.
14	Do.	Wachet.	Padamyazedi Pagoda.	Erected, in 1300 A.D., by a monk called Padugyi Thingayaza, and repaired last by the late Sinbyumayin, Queen of Mindôn. It is cylindrical in form, and its bell-shaped dome is covered with glass mosaic.
15	Do.	Chaung-u	Ti-hlaing Shin Pagoda.	Erected, in the XIth century A.D., by Prince Kyanzitha. It was originally named "Teiklan Shin" because he was once rightened (Teiklan) in his sleep at the fall of a lance during his lonely flight from Pagan. The pagoda has caves wherein inscriptions are kept.

Erected, in 1481 A.D., by Dutiya Mingaung, King of Ava, and repaired by Pagan Min in 1851 A.D., but the repair was incomplete, owing probably to the breaking out of the second Anglo-Burmese War. The shrine is similar, in form, to the Tupayōn Pagoda at Sagaing, and has tiers of niches at its greatest circumference.
20	Do.	Do.	Shwezigōn Pagoda.	Built, in 1312 A.D., by Thiha-thu Tazishin, King of Pinya, after the subversion of the Empire of Pagan by the Mongols.
21	Do.	Singyōn ...	Lawkathayapu	Built, in 1743 A.D., by Hantawadi-ba-min, the last king of the Nyaungyan dynasty, who was deposed by the Talaings, and repaired successively by Singu Min in 1778 A.D., and by Mindōn Min in 1858 A.D. It was used as a heliograph station by the Military authorities during the early days of the British annexation of Upper Burma.
22	Shwebo	Shwebo ...	Tomb of King Alaungpaya.	This King's name is also written Alompra. He founded the last dynasty of Burma, and reigned from 1753 to 1760. During his invasion of Siam, he contracted dysentery, and was obliged to return to Burma. On his way, he died at Kinywa in the Thatōn District. His body was carried back to Shwebo and burnt within the city walls, through which an opening was made for its passage.

MAGWE DIVISION.

PART FIRST—STRUCTURAL EDIFICES.

Classification.

(See Government of India, Home Department, Resolution No. 3—168-83, dated the 26th November 1883, as subsequently amended by Government of India, Education Department, Resolution No. 48, dated the 21st February 1919.)

I. Those monuments which, from their present condition and historical or archaeological value, ought to be maintained in permanent good repair.

II. Those monuments which it is now only possible or desirable to save from further decay by such minor measures as the eradication of vegetation, the exclusion of water from the walls, and the like.

III. Those monuments which, from their advanced stage of decay or comparative unimportance, it is impossible or unnecessary to preserve.

The monuments in classes I and II should be further subdivided thus:—

I. (a) & II. (a)—Monuments owned and maintained by Government.

I. (b) & II. (b)—Monuments owned and maintained by private persons *

I. (c) & II. (c)—Monuments owned by private persons * but maintained by the owners and Government jointly or by the Government exclusively.

* In Burma, pagodas, monasteries, sayats and cave temples are not the subjects of private ownership, and the expression "monuments owned by private persons" is not strictly accurate. For these reasons, a departure may be made from the prescribed term, and all such monuments shown in the list may be designated as "Monuments dedicated to the Buddhist Church" taking the word "Church" in its larger sense of the body of Buddhist believers.

1	Pakōkku	Tangyi	Tangyi Swēdaw Shin Pagoda.	Built, in the 11th century A.D., by Anawrata; enshrines a replica of the Tooth-Relic of Ceylon.
2	Do.	Shwetandit.	Shwetandit Image.	Constructed by Alaungsithu, King of Pagan (1112-1167 A.D.), of sandalwood procured from Malaysia. The King is said to have been a great traveller and to have visited Bodh Gaya in Bengal. The following six images were made under the orders of the same King :— (i) Shwe Tandit; (ii) Singyo Shweku; (iii) Pakan Sithuyin; (iv) Sinma-daung; (v) Anya Thihadaw, and (vi) Datpaung Myinzu.
3	Do.	Myitkaing	Phiho-yin Image.	Brought from Ceylon by Alaungsithu, King of Pagan (1112-1167 A.D.); said to be constructed of ten kinds of wood, namely, (i) Thabye; (ii) Thayetkan; (iii) Bodhi; (iv) Nanthā; (v) Sandagu; (vi) Tin-yu; (vii) Kathit; (viii) Thakut; (ix); Kōkko and (x) Tein.

8	Pakōkku	Paya-taung.	Shwepaung-laung and Shwemōk-taw Pagodas.	Ascribed to Asoka; repaired by Alaungsithu in the 12th century A.D. The latter King set up an inscription, and imposed the duty of repairing the shrine on the following seven villages: Yinma, Pyinchaung, Nyaung-win, Ainggaing, Paw-tè, Saban and Sabè. In order to obliterate the origin of the inhabitants of these villages, the epigraph was thrown into the Ywa river, as in similar cases elsewhere.
9	Do.	Taung-bet-ywa.	Shwekunōk Pagoda.	Built on the margin of a lake by Alaungsithu in the 12th century A.D.
10	Minbu	Kyaung-dawya.	Kyaung-dawya Pagoda.	Erected according to tradition in 569 B. C., by Mahāthera Mahāpunna, on the site of a sandal-wood monastery occupied by Gotama Buddha, at the invitation of Mahāthera, who was one of the immediate disciples of the Buddha; originally built of stone, its height was about 3 cubits; was subsequently enlarged and repaired by the kings of Pagan and Ava.
11	Do.	Paya-ywa	Shwezettaw Pagoda.	Gotama Buddha was invited to visit the sandal wood monastery at Lēgaing by Mahāthera Mahāpunna. On his return, at the request of Sachchabandha Rishi, he left a foot-print on the top of the Makuta hill, and another at the foot of the same hill at the solicitation of Nāga-rāja Nammantā (vide Pādachetiya-dipani-kyan by U Dipa of Salin).
12	Do.	Auk-kyauing-ywa.	Auk-kyauing Sigōn Myazedi Pagoda.	Built, in the 14th century A. D., by Thihapate, Governor of Taungdwin-gyi, who was the brother-in-law of Sinbyu Ngazi Shin Kyawzwa, King of Pinya (1342—1350 A.D.).
13	Do.	Natha ...	Shinbin Kuni Pagoda.	Said to be erected on the site of the residence of Mahā Punna, by Jeyya-sūra (also known as Alaungsittu), King of Pagan (1112—1167 A.D.).

OF

ARAKAN DIVISION.

PART FIRST—STRUCTURAL EDIFICES.

Classification.

(See Government of India, Home Department, Resolution No. 3—168-83, dated the 26th November 1883, as subsequently amended by Government of India, Education Department Resolution No. 48, dated the 21st February 1919.

I. Those monuments, which from their present condition and historical or archaeological value, ought to be maintained in permanent good repair.

II. Those monuments, which it is now only possible or desirable to save from further decay by such minor measures as the eradication of vegetation, the exclusion of water from the walls, and the like.

III. Those monuments, which from the advanced stage of decay or comparative unimportance, it is impossible or unnecessary to preserve.

The monuments in classes I and II should be further subdivided thus:—

I. (a) and II. (a) —Monuments owned and maintained by Government.

I (b) and II (b).—Monuments owned and maintained by private persons.*

I (c) and II (c).—Monuments owned by private persons* but maintained by the owners and Government jointly or by the Government exclusively.

* In Burma, pagodas, monasteries, sayats and cave temples are not the subject of private ownership, and the expression "monuments owned by private persons" is not strictly accurate. For these reasons, a departure may be made from the prescribed term, and all such monuments shown in the list may be designated as "Monuments dedicated to the Buddhist Church" taking the word "Church" in its larger sense of the body of Buddhist believers.

1	Akyab	Kaladan...	Mahamuni Temple.	Tradition ascribes it to Chandasuriya, king of Arakan, who built it to enshrine the image of the Buddha cast during the lifetime of the Sage himself in the 6th century B.C. The image was removed to Amara-pura in 1784, as a spoil of war, after the conquest of Arakan by the Einshemin, son of Bodawpaya. It has now been placed in the Mahamuni or Arakan Pagoda, Mandalay (vide item 26, page 14 of the List of Ancient Monuments in Upper Burma, Mandalay Division). The temple has passed through many vicissitudes and has been repaired many times. It was last repaired in 1867 A.D.

As his betel-chewing subjects are in the habit of cleaning, after removing chunam (lime) from the box and laying it on the betel-leaf, their soiled forefinger on the door posts or other convenient places, the king issued an order that the door posts of his new palace were not to be soiled in the manner indicated; any one infringing against the rule was to be punished by having the offending finger cut off. After some time, the king, forgetful of his own order, cleaned his finger by rubbing it against one of the palace door posts. The attending

				Ministers made a careful note of it, writing down the date and hour when it occurred, but did not remove the lime from the post. A few days later, the king observed the spot on the palace door and, unconscious that he himself was the culprit, angrily ordered his Ministers to ascertain the offender and see the punishment for such an offence inflicted upon him. When the Ministers produced the proof of his own guilt, the King, with his own sword, cut off his forefinger, saying "that even a King should not issue orders for himself to break with impunity." To commemorate the event he had the image-house erected, and instructed the sculptors to allow only four fingers to the right hand of the images of Buddha.

It is said that on the hill, where this Pagoda was built, the Buddha once lived in a former existence as a Brahman of high birth, and that a Pagoda was erected over his skull on his death, which was found on the same hill. It was repaired by king Gajapati, of the Myauk-ū dynasty, in 1521 A.D. when it had fallen into ruin, again it was repaired by king Thadomintara in 1611 A.D., and by king Varadhammarāja in 1688 A.D. It was recently repaired by a private individual and gilt.

44	Akyab	Akyab ...	Buddermokan Mosque.	Said to have been founded over a century ago by two merchants of Chittagong in memory of one Budder Auliah whom the Mussulmans regarded as an eminent saint. Colonel Nelson Davis, Deputy Commissioner of Akyab, in 1876, gives the following account in a record preserved in the office of the Commissioner of Arakan :— “ On the southern side of the island of Akyab, near the eastern shore of the Bay, there is a group of masonry buildings, one of which, in its style of construction, resembles an Indian mosque ; the other is a cave, constructed of stone on the bare rock which superstructure once served as a hermit's cell. The spot where these buildings are situated is called Buddermokan, Budder being the name of a saint of Islam, and mokan, a place of abode. It is said that 140 years ago or thereabouts two brothers named Manick and Chan, traders from Chittagong, while returning from Cape Negrais in a vessel loaded with turmeric called at Akyab for water, and the vessel anchored off the Buddermokan rocks. On the following night, after Chan and Manick had procured water near these rocks, Manick had a dream that the saint Budder Auliah desired him to construct a cave or a place of abode at the locality near where they procured the water. Manick replied that he had no means wherewith he could comply with the request. Budder then said that all his (Manick's) turmeric would turn into gold, and that he should therefore endeavour to erect the building from the proceeds thereof. When morning came Manick, observing that all the turmeric had been transformed into

Dickenson, Esq., Commissioner of Arakan to the effect that one Hussain Ally (then the thugyi of Bhudamaw Circle) was to have charge of the Buddermokan in token of his good services rendered to the British force in 1825, and to enjoy any sums that he might collect on account of alms and offerings. "In 1849 Mr. R. C. Raikes, the officiating Magistrate at Akyab, ordered that Hussain Ally was to have charge of the Buddermokan buildings, and granted permission to one Mah Ming Oung, a female fakir to erect a building; accordingly in 1849 the present masonry buildings were constructed by her; she also re-dug the tank. "The expenditure for the whole work came to about Rs. 2,000. After Hussain Ally's death his son Abdoolah had charge, and after the death of the latter, his sister Me Moorazamal, the present wife of Abdool Morein, Pleader, took charge.
